

Control Board Sets Up Rate Schedule for Use of Center

Procedure for Rental of Center Given

The Control Board for the Community Center met Tuesday evening and adopted a set of rules for the operation of the Center.

The rules must have the approval of the Director of Public Works.

The board set the charges for the use of the building as follows:

For use of the auditorium without the kitchen facilities $1.50 per meeting.

For use of auditorium and kitchen facilities, $2.50.

For all youth groups, no charge. Youth groups have first call on the use of the Center.

Any group desiring to use the building must contact Mrs. Gilbert Durham for date. Her phone is H-3402. She will notify the Center.

Flag Presented to Community Center

Mr. Hupp of the Department of Public Works of San Diego County, has presented a flag to the Lemon Grove Community Center.

The County keeps the Center grounds in shape and furnishes a landscape gardener for that purpose. The County also pays all the bills for cost of operation, such as lights, gas, water. All rentals are turned into the County by the Secretary-Treasurer.

If at the end of the year there is any surplus, the Control Board may ask the money be spent on the Center.

The only funds that the Control Board has any jurisdiction over are donations which individuals or groups may make to the Center.

At present the County is installing a drinking fountain and barbecue at the south side of the cemented area.

A. F. Sonka has offered the lot to the north of the building as a parking lot provided the County clean it in shape for use.

The Business Women's League has donated $100 toward a cook stove for the kitchen, providing the sum will be matched by some other group. The Camp Fire Girls and Girl Scouts have agreed to furnish the balance of the money to purchase the stove. Mr. Baxter appointed a committee Tuesday evening to get quotations on a stove, and the committee was authorized to make such purchase.

holder of the keys, who in turn will release the keys to the person authorized to pick them up. Receipt must be signed by party getting key, and upon return of keys custodian will initial receipt in presence of party returning same.

The keys will be kept at the Hazlip Pharmacy, 7801 Broadway. The keys must be returned within reasonable time, either that evening, or early the next morning.

Forrest Baxter is chairman of the Control Board, and Mrs. Gilbert Durham is secretary-treasurer.

The County has set up rules for the operation of the Center, and the Control Board acts under these rules.

Quoted from the rules:

It is the duty of the executive committee to see that all groups using the recreation center building comply with all county regulations in Ordinance 382, and also the committee may set up such of its own rules as it may deem necessary, with the approval of the control board and the Director of Public Works.

Hi, Neighbor

by Mae Ree Graham

Many of our boys and girls have been graduated the past week to go to higher learning in High Schools or Colleges. If, in attaining this higher education, they can learn to live with other people, they will start out in life with half the battle won.

To be tolerant of other's opinions and ideas; to be charitable toward others faults and failings; to be kind in thought and deed to all with whom they come in contact, will give them an understanding of their associates that is necessary in making a success of any undertaking.

Men may be successful in accruing wealth in terms of property and bank accounts but if they have not a love in their hearts for their fellow men, whether they be rich or poor, their loneliness finds them poor indeed.

The fact that our boys and girls are wanting higher learning shows a virtue of character building—that of ambition.

Much ambition is needed in every school today to keep to the front for never was there keener competition in classes, in sports, and in all campus activities.

Whatever success the student may attain in making high grades, or of winning laurels in competitive fields, if he has not learned to live with people, his education is not complete.

P. O. Department Now Spells It Lemon Grove

The postoffice department has acceded to the wishes of the Lemon Grove Chamber of Commerce and the great majority of local citizens and changed the name of the postoffice here from Lemon Grove to two words, Lemon Grove.

The two spellings of this community has been confusing in the past, but the majority finally won their point.

So now it is:

LEMON GROVE!

Congressman McKinnon, when he was home from Washington during the primary election campaign, felt the pulse of this community, and reported at Kiwanis Club that he found the two word spellers in the majority, and said he would report his findings to Postmaster General Don-lson, with the expectation that the change would be made in the new postal directory.

Local Fishermen Get the Big Ones

Lemon Grove deep sea fishermen hit the jack pot on six days in succession last week; John van Gilse with a 32 pound white sea bass and a 25 pound yellowtail; Mrs. A. H. Cole, a 15 pound bass, A. H. Cole, 30 pound bass and W. L. McQueen, 27 pound yellowtail and bass.

Van Gilse and MacQueen have qualified for the Yellowtail Derby.

Thousands View Events of Fiesta

The beautiful, and spacious grounds of the St. John of the Cross Church and its school provided an ideal setting and adequate space for an estimated 10,000 persons who attended the Mission Rancho Fiesta, barbecue and show last Sunday.

Promptly at 11:30 a. m. the parade formed on Broadway at Massachusetts and proceeded east to the show grounds, headed by Walter Church on Expo as parade marshal with the charming Mrs. Church riding her mount with beautiful silver trappings.

Although there were many cars and floats, the parade was distinctly equestrian with hundreds of superbly groomed horses and western clad riders.

The St. Augustine High School Band directed by Bernard J. Morzinski added to the enjoyment of the affair and furnished music in the arena throughout the afternoon.

The parade dispersed after marching around the arena before the judge's stand where the following awards were made:

Best parade mount, No. 43, Frank Bettencourt.

Best Man—Plain Western, No. 42, Ma'com Rosse.

Best Lady—Plain Western, No. 17, Mabel Rheault.

Best Boy—Plain Western, Nos. 9 and 10, Jensen twins, Richard and Robert.

Best Girl—Plain Western, No. 53, Jean Kramer.

Best Comic Costume (mounted), No. 38, Beaver Barrow.

There were 45 entries in the parade.

Prizes awarded in the arena went to the following:

Stock Horse: 1st, Jimmy Williams on Sheriff Echols; 2nd, C. W. Heil on Sheik's Saint; 3rd, Jimmy Williams on Rocky Ford.

Calf Roping: 1st, Ross Shields; 2nd, Ruse Cowder; 3rd, Bob Treising.

Cattle Cutting: 1st, Paul Newton with Coco Britches; 2nd, Bill Lampkin with Tumble Weed; 3rd, Thelma Williams with Louise Fleming.

Team Roping: 1st, Bruce Fowler and Dink Bruton; 2nd, C. C. Quinn and Glen Jewell; 3rd, Ben Britton and C. C. Quinn, Bruce Bowler and Red Brooks.

At the beginning of the program in the arena, a contingent of Spanish-American War Veterans raised the American Flag with A'lee Riders and Bar-O Riding Club forming a mounted color guard. Mrs. James A. McDonagh led in singing the National Anthem.

The Rock n' Ride Drill Team, composed of 16 young women, gave an exhibition of formation riding which alone was worth the price of admission. This team has won first place wherever it has entered in competition.

On behalf of St. John of the Cross School, we wish to extend sincere thanks for the participation of so many friends in the Fiesta. Their support and helpful association with the organizing committee was a major factor in the success of this year's Fiesta.

Lt. Com. John W. Kuhl, U.S.N. Rev. Fr. John McDonagh.

Call Meeting to Discuss Holding Powow

John Hill has called a meeting for 7:30 tomorrow (Friday) evening at Community Center to discuss plans for holding the Powow this summer.

Tentative dates, August 18, 19 and 20, were set some time ago and filed with the San Diego Chamber of Commerce.

Various organizations of Lemon Grove are invited to participate in Friday's meeting, and Mr. Hill told a representative of the Review that if enough encouragement is offered, the Powow will be put on again this year.

Haaf Heads County Group

Ted Haaf of Lemon Grove was elected president of the San Diego County Development Federation at the organization's meeting in San Diego Tuesday evening.

Other officers named to serve with Mr. Haaf are William Heald of Fallbrook, vice-president; and Robert Coyner secretary. The directors are: Ray Morse, Chula Vista; Cy Buehrer, San Ysidro; Wm. Sample, Jr., San Diego; Charles Fletcher, San Diego; Frank Adams, Escondido; Vince Dixon, Oceanside and Lee Hunt, Julian.

Mr. Haaf, the vice president, presided at many of the meetings the past few months due to the president moving to Santa Barbara.

Officials of the California World Progress Exposition in 1953 were the speakers at the meeting. A. J. Sutherland, exposition treasurer, assailed as "irresponsible gabble" criticism of the use of Balboa Park for the exposition.

He told the Federation that all of the park buildings will be renovated, new ones will be designed with regard to detail and setting, future beauty and usefulness to the community, and that the gardens will be expanded.

Other speakers were Ewart W. Goodwin, exposition president, and C. O. Taylor exposition vice-president and Central Labor Council president.

The Pledge to Flag Has a Weird History

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

On Wednesday, June 14, Flag Day, thousands—maybe millions of Americans repeated:

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, And to the Republic for which it stands."

One Nation indivisible With Liberty and Justice for all."

Wonder how many of them, as they repeated "The Pledge to the Flag," knew who wrote it, the circumstance under which it was written, and when it was first published, etc.

As an item of journalistic history, let it be recorded that "The Pledge" first appeared in that favorite magazine of juvenile America half a century ago, the Youth's Companion in August 1892. The Companion was then engaged in a campaign to stimulate patriotism in its youthful readers, a campaign, incidentally, which resulted in stimulating circulation to the extent of 488,000 subscribers.

There was much talk of the forthcoming World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago and the Youth's Companion, after print-

Golf and Country Club is Closed

The last game of golf on the La Mesa Golf and Country Club course was played on Wednesday evening of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Whistler finished at the eighteenth hole at 10 o'clock that evening and the course did not open Thursday morning.

Plans to erect 400 homes on the course and 200 more in the hills above the greens are shaping up, with Hobart Homes about to exercise its option on the land.

About half the homes will be in the Lemon Grove School District, and the other half in the La Mesa-Spring Valley District.

Application for annexation to the Lemon Grove Sanitation District has been filed with the San Diego County Board of Supervisors, and a hearing on annexation will take place before the Board, Monday, July 3, at 11 a. m.

The present Lemon Grove sewers stop at Grove avenue, so territory between Grove and the golf course will be included in the annexation.

There have been many rumors floating around Lemon Grove regarding the feasibility of the Lemon Grove sewer system to handle additional territory.

According to information furnished the Review and published June 1, the Lemon Grove system is capable of handling a much larger population than the community now has. Also, according to that news story, the new users will pay their share of cost of operation, as well as the cost of installing sewers in their own streets, and a $50 connection charge.

Harms Assisting in N. C. Bank

Bruce Harms, assistant manager of the Lemon Grove branch, First National Bank, is relieving E. O. Rogers, manager of the National City branch during the latter's illness.

Several changes in personnel have taken place at the local branch recently. Mrs. Shirley Peterson has resigned her position here. Mrs. Edith Lowney is a new bookkeeper, and Miss Ruth Potter is on loan to the branch from the main office.

James Kutzner is a new teller at window number two. Mr. Moore has moved to window number one and Mr. Erwine is acting as all round man.

The Lemon Grove branch will be a year old next week.

UNDERGOES SURGERY

Carl M. Fischer, father of Mrs. Walter M. Balmer, of the Lemon Grove Trading Post, was taken to Paradise Valley Sanitarium the first of the week. Wednesday morning he underwent major surgery and at last report was getting along as well as could be expected.

Tells Socialized Medicine Fallacy

Dr. Norman O'Farrell of San Diego, using the potato as an example of what will happen if the United States goes in for socialized medicine, told the members of the Kiwanis Club Monday noon that it would be the first steps towards taking over the banks, public utilities and transportation.

He pointed out that medical aid run by the government would make the situation worse than at present.

The United States is the healthiest country in the world, Dr. O'Farrell said. "The medical profession does not believe there are 68 million Americans without medical care."

In England, the doctor said, the government can tell a doctor that he must go to such and such a place to practice, that he is assigned so many patients, and paper work piled high on the medico's desk.

Also, there is a tendency to call on the doctor for the slightest ill, and to run the deal into the ground.

The American Medical Association believes everybody should have medical care, but in any plan that the individual should take care of the smaller bills.

He cited one instance in San Diego where a group was under medical care, and one mother called a doctor late at night to come out and see her baby, and would the doctor pick up a loaf of bread on the way.

The doctors don't like to be told how to practice medicine, Dr. O'Farrell said, nor how to use a certain kind of medicine.

Nobody knows how much socialized medicine will cost, he said, though certain groups try to tell us that the medical bill of the American people will be less under this plan than at present.

All estimates he has seen are way too low, he said, adding that in Great Britain the costs are way over what it was claimed they would be.

Dr. George Brassington presented Dr. O'Farrell.

The Bond Vote Starts Lemon Grove Forward

The vote for the fire bonds has been officially declared to be 604 yes and 159 no; and for the tax levy $95 yes and 171 no.

The Fire Commissioners met Tuesday evening and canvassed the ballots, and found the vote to be as shown above.

J. Morris Mulkey, chairman of the Commissioners, Harry Monnell, secretary-treasurer and A. C. Anderson, member, are more than gratified with the result of the election.

They are now entering upon the second phase of the work laid out for them.

That is arranging for the sale of the bonds, setting the tax levy when the County Assessor certifies the assessed valuation of the district, selecting a site for the new fire station, and getting bids on a fire truck and equipment for the new fire station.

The bond sale is being handled by O'Melveny & Myers, Los Angeles legal firm. When the name of this firm is placed upon bonds of any nature it is enough to insure their sale, which means that it will not be too long before the fire district has the capital outlay with which to go ahead with the building of the station and the purchasing of the truck.

The new district is also ready now to receive petitions for an annexation from residents of contiguous territory.

The final culmination in voting bonds is the result of long planning on the part of the Chamber of Commerce, which sponsored and pioneered the move for fire protection in Lemon Grove.

The petitions asking the San Diego County Board of Supervisors to form the district were circulated by the Chamber of Commerce directors and the directors appeared before the Board last September to plead their case.

The Board headed the plea formed the district and appointed three directors, Chas. Mason, V. E. Dues and A. C. Anderson.

These men carried on for several months, holding weekly meetings and laying the groundwork. Prestage of personal business caused Mr. Mason and Mr. Dues to resign, and on the recommendation of V. J. Dorman president of the Chamber of Commerce, Rev. J. Morris Mulkey and Harry Monnell were appointed to fill the vacancies.

That these appointments were wise choices is proved by the successful election of last Thursday.

Soon we will have the long needed fire protection.

Four hundred seventy-five dollars has been raised for operation of the summer playground, and a letter of application written to San Diego County Board of Supervisors for additional funds.

All members of the Recreation Commission wish to thank those people of Lemon Grove and Vista La Mesa who gave so generously of their time and money to promote this program and hopes sincerely to fulfill their hopes and requests.

The program will begin July 5 and end August 25, with a six hour program, five days a week at Lemon Grove and 12 hours a week at Vista La Mesa.

The children to be included will be kindergarten through sixth graders at Vista La Mesa and kindergarten through 12th at Lemon Grove. In charge will be one paid full-time and two part-time helpers and volunteer parents.

Parents will be required to accompany and register their children on the opening day (July 5) of the program. The youngest

MR. HOOVER OBSERVES

Early in May, Herbert Hoover, the only living ex-President, made a noteworthy speech to a group of 1800 editors and publishers. The world, he said, had drunk too deeply of the mixed drinks of three ghosts: "The shade of Karl Marx with his socialism, the shade of Mussolini with his dictatorial economy, the spook of Lord John Maynard Keynes with his perpetual unemployment for bureaucrats. And we have contributed an American ideology of giveaway programs. It might be called the new Generosity. It is not yet a ghost."

Mr. Hoover did not turn thumbs down on all governmental welfare activities. Indeed, he said, "Security from the cradle to about 18 or 20 years of age, and from 65 to the grave, has always been sacred to the American people. But, he went on, the group which is in between these extremes "can find its own security only in a free but tough system of risk and self-reliance. It can be destroyed by taxes and the four mixed drinks."

Then Mr. Hoover turned his attention to our two major political parties. He observed that in European nations there are multitudes of parties which create confusion and despair. If we are to avoid that, he said, our two parties must really become opposites. We should have, on the one hand, a staunchly conservative Republican Party, opposed, on the other, by a Democratic Party which tends to the left. Only under such a condition, he believes, would it be possible for the voters to make a clear-cut choice, and for the respective parties to really stand for something definite and unequivocal.

It is certainly evident that neither of the parties even faintly resembles a cohesive whole today. The Democrats are now the majority party, and the President, their leader, has a program of unprecedented scope for enlarging the functions of the government into business, for putting the government into business, for continued Federal spending on a huge scale, and for all-inclusive social security. At the same time, the Democrats have in the Senate the foremost advocate of government economy. Senator Byrd, and their majority is made possible by a Southern delegation which still holds to traditional states' rights doctrines, and which is almost 100% opposed to the President on such great issues as the Administration's civil rights bill.

The situation is similarly confused within the Republican Party. Its most effective leader is Senator Taft, a conservative who believes that ever-growing government is the greatest menace to the freedom of the people. Yet it also has a group of aggressive, "liberal" Senators, such as Aiken and Morse and Smith, who are continually restive under the present leadership, and who go along with much of the Truman program.

It can be effectively argued that a great political party is big enough to contain men of widely varied views. However, at the present time, the voter doesn't have much choice. In the last Presidential election, for instance, Governors Dewey and Warren campaigned on a program which, in essence, was not basically different from Mr. Truman. They offered the voters about the same things that Mr. Truman offered them, but said the Republicans could do it better. This attitude, as the results proved, was not convincing. Mr. Hoover's idea is simply that the parties stand definitely for specific, opposed policies. Time will tell whether that goal is possible of achievement.

HOW ABOUT RETAIL PRICES?

Dr. Charles M. Whitto, head of the Department of Retailing, University of Southern California, recently made an address in which he touched on a subject of great interest to consumers—retail prices.

He said: "Retail prices, in the aggregate, have been drifting lower. The index is now around 100, or some five percent, below the 1948 peak. But certainly that is no significant decline. There does not appear to be any prospect of much change in the general price level in the near future. Forces are working in both directions and largely offsetting each other. Factors tending to sustain prices are higher costs, Federal fiscal policy, farm price supports, etc. Factors working in the interest of lower prices are the high volume of production of marketable goods, technology, etc."

In other words, the situation is pretty much of a stalemate—the forces on one side seem to balance those on the other. So consumers who are waiting for big price breaks are in all probability foredoomed to disappointment. In the free market, nobody can "fix" prices, at either high or low levels. The inexorable workings of economic law go the deciding. And in a competitive market, prices always find the lowest level compatible with the conditions of the time.

The point is that inflationary influences are still present, and they are strong. The most dangerous of them all is the government's deficit-creating fiscal policy.

BUSINESS FIGHTS BACK

In a slashing, hammer-and-tong attack on Congressman Frank Buchanan's special House investigating Committee, that frayed old punching bag for politicians—American business—has suddenly come to life. Buchanan touched off the business barrage when he sent a loaded questionnaire to 166 big corporations demanding a report of all expenditures in the last three and a half years "relating to any attempt to influence, directly or indirectly, the passage or defeat of any federal legislation." Left wing propaganda groups and Administration favorites, however, are conspicuous by their absence.

In a vitriolic reply to Buchanan, W. C. Mullendore, president of Southern California Edison, said: "We cannot now say definitely whether it is humanly possible to furnish the extremely detailed information which might have had some direct or indirect effect upon the world-wide field covered by the federal legislation of today. But we can at once give you our reaction to the enormity of tyranny implied in your demand."

The inquisitorial and extremely burdensome demand for information which you have no moral right to demand is a most alarming example of the use of intimidation. This is to express deepest resentment and indignation at this brazen attempt at thought-control and freedom of expression on behalf of the citizens of whom you are the servant and not the master."

Significantly the blasts from other companies on Buchanan's list have been no less emphatic. Business for the first time in decades is fighting back. If someone hoped to make a political whipping boy of business again during the fall campaign, there is every indication that that time-worn strategy is about to backfire. As many a fighter has discovered, it is one thing to knock a punching bag around and quite another to trade blows with an opponent that's willing and able to fight.

FROM THE NEWS CIRCUIT
JAMES DORRIS

Anyone interested in learning how to grow old gracefully, painlessly—and apparently at government expense—is invited to attend a conference to be held in Washington, D. C. on August 13, under the auspices of Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing.

Expected to be present are more than 800 representatives of labor unions, business, churches, medicine, education groups and government bureaus. Described as the "Conference on Aging," the meeting will discuss the serious problems of jobs for older workers, the medical and psychological factors involved in retirement and growing old.

The announced purpose is to exchange information, discuss solutions and consider suggestions to be passed along to "interested groups, including the Federal Government, as guide lines for developing policies in the entire field."

In calling the conference, the government apparently just wants to be helpful. According to Mr. Ewing, whose brainchild it is, "we visualize no Government action at all, as of today."

As of after the conference, however, the situation is subject to change.

Two years ago, Mr. Ewing called another conference in Washington, the National Health Assembly, to discuss the status of the Nation's health. Many of the well-meaning people who attended that conference expected merely to exchange information, discuss solutions and consider suggestions, and visualized no Government action at all.

After the Assembly went home, however, Mr. Ewing busily set to work to twist its deliberations into background material for the Administration's ambitious bill to place the practice of medicine under Government control. The proposed legislation has met with such continued storms of protest that Mr. Ewing himself last week lamely protested he doesn't really believe in socialized medicine. He just wants compulsory health insurance.

To most people, compulsory health insurance and socialized medicine are synonymous, but Mr. Ewing apparently sees some distinction not visible to the untrained eye.

What the Federal Security Administrator will come up with in the way of proposed legislation to implement the deliberations of the Conference on Aging can scarcely be imagined. It may be anything from Federal grants-in-aid for ammunition to shoot everyone reaching age 65 to $1000 monthly Federal old-age pensions.

It is very doubtful that Mr. Ewing's department, after delegates to the Conference on Aging have dispersed, will recommend that the Government act to encourage people to provide for their own future by reducing taxes and reversing the inflationary policies that are slowly but systematically wiping out savings.

Such a recommendation would be hopelessly old-fashioned, and besides, if followed, there would be only a limited need for a Federal Security Administration.

Political Parade

CLEM WHITAKER, Jr.

The stage has been set for the November General Election ballot—and aside from candidates, it appears at this date that California will vote on 10 constitutional amendments, seven submitted to the electorate by the Legislature and three by route of initiative petition.

By far the hottest measures destined to come before the voters is the deceptively titled "Pensions and Welfare Funding Act." It allows no benefits to people on the pension rolls, but does remove all restrictions on gambling as a business.

While purporting to provide a new way of paying for pensions by licensing every known form of gambling and taking a cut from the profits, the up-off on the initiative is that the promoters name themselves to State office through wording of the act. Five men—five promoters—would have absolute power to issue and revoke gambling licenses, to collect license fees and taxes, to make and enforce gambling regulations, and to operate their own gambling establishments!

The five-man commission would be a separate, independent department of the State Government, accountable to no one but itself. If the Commission's operations resulted in a loss, it could draw funds at will, and without limit, from the State Treasury to cover deficits. On adoption of the scheme, the State of California would be obliged to turn over immediately the sum of six million dollars to the would-be, self-appointed commissioners.

Opponents of the proposal point out that wherever unrestricted gambling establishments—legal or illegal—have been allowed to flourish, organized crime and civic corruption have flourished, too.

Another initiative measure bound to set off sparks would repeal all taxes on personal property, thus denying California cities and counties one of their principal sources of revenue. Some $200,000,000 annually are collected in personal property taxes. If they are repealed, tax experts predict an immediate increase in other taxes to compensate for the loss.

The third initiative to qualify for the ballot would require the approval, at an election, of the majority of electors of a county of city before any Federal or State financed public housing project could be established by the State, any county, city, district, authority or other State public body.

Of the seven constitutional amendments being submitted to the voters by the Legislature, most are of a technical nature but one prohibiting the naming of individuals to public office in an initiative is particularly significant in view of the fact that the promoters of the gambling scheme are attempting to become gambling czars by means of the stratagem.

Talks and Walks

With Mother Nature

BY TRIXIE TREGANZA

July 5—This Saturday morning found us up long before the sun rays had peered over the mountain top. Talking over our breakfast, it occurred to us that we had neglected to celebrate the 4th of July. We had intended sending our tribute to patriotism, skyward, in the flames of a huge bonfire; but planning trips 'abirding' completely overshadowed our patriotic intentions.

A lunch was packed and all started from camp in the height of good cheer. Baby was carried on shoulders to Brighton at which place Miss Kent would stop at the store and return via the road. Father T. brought up the rear while we worked up the mountain side, each with a willow thrashing the ground as we went.

It was rather disappointing to find no birds where in other years there had been so plentiful. After lunch Father T. and the Mullens set out for Dog Lake while A.O.T. and I took a log trail to the thicket pines where the snow had just melted. Here the willow and undergrowth of grass and flowers was just leafing out. In little parklike areas and clumps of trees one would expect to find the bird life plentiful. Listening and watching, we saw only a few Juncos and a family of Rocky Mountain Jay. Somewhat disappointed, we rejoined Father T. and the Mullens who had each taken sets of White-crown Sparrow and Pink-sided Junco.

In a dense growth of pines where two years ago we had heard not a note or saw a single bird, there was a Kinglet in almost every tree. For an hour or more we searched a clue to a Pine Grosbeak's nest, followed the pair from tree to tree and were finally left in the lurch when they suddenly dropped to lower ground. A big fat porcupine was sunning himself up in a conifer about 100 feet, and we tried to bring him to earth with a few stones; but he only shifted his lazy bulk to the other side of the tree.

It was an extremely hot day, and with the waning hours of the afternoon, our zeal likewise diminished, so we lazily shuffled down the home trail to a little tent where ice-cream was sold, then on to the cabin. After dinner we sat about voicing displeasure at the termination of the trip.

July 6—This morning the men wandered aimlessly about. Father T. went down to fish. Mrs. Mullens and I broke up camp taking with us all but sufficient to make it comfortable for Father T. who was to remain a week or two longer. Each one ate lunch when the inclination seized him, and by two in the afternoon all was in readiness for departure. At 2:45 took our leave. Baby, the Mullens and I in a wagon; Miss Kent and A.O.T. on the motorcycle. One of the horses had a lame foot which meant that they walked the 26 miles back to town. The day was intensely hot, and with baby squirming about in my lap this was without a doubt the most disagreeable ride I had ever been compelled to take. It seemed especially hard and never ending when I thought of A.O.T. being home in one hour and 40 minutes.

As we came to the mouth of the canyon onto the bench land overlooking the valley below it was a lovely view, but marred by smoke and dust and the sultry vapid atmosphere. Not one of us but would have turned and gone back to the peace, quiet and cool of the mountains; but our holiday had ended and we must come back to mingle with rabid humanity, breathing in the vermined air for at least another year.

It was 9:30 when we reached home. Everything seemed so queer, for nearly three weeks the rush and roar of the mountain stream had filled our ears.

Coming into the house seemed like crawling into a tiny nutshell, compared to the great unfettered mountains; but then to everything there is a beginning and an end.

July 13—As the weekend drew near we cast furtive glances in the direction of the mountains, and mutual glances of understanding flashed across the dinner table each night. Friday night the machine was put in order. At 3:30 Saturday morning we awakened, fixed a hasty breakfast, carried our sleeping baby down to Grandmother's and were off for the mountains.

It was a glorious ride in the early morning; but as we rode into the South, an ominous sheet of gray was traveling to meet us. As we approached the mouth of the canyon it too seemed headed that way. We thought to outride it but very soon large drops of rain were beating down upon us. It was foolish to continue, so we made a hasty retreat, riding desperately fast to outwit the storm. We were thoroughly wet, but out of the path of the rain drops after about 15 miles.

a Child Falls From a Park Swing, Is the City Liable?

A boy was sitting on a swing in a public park, when two of his schoolmates walked up. Seizing the swing on each end, they began playfully twisting it from side to side. Suddenly the boy, becoming dizzy from this rocking motion, fell to the ground. He suffered a knee injury, and later sued the city for damages. His lawyer contended: "The city invites children to come and play in this park, so it's up to the city to provide enough supervision to prevent accidents." But the court rejected the boy's claim, because the mishap had occurred so suddenly and so unexpectedly. The judge said it was impossible to have a special supervisor at every swing—and nothing less would have prevented this kind of accident.

May the City Silence Ambulance Sirens — To Keep the Streets Quieter?

As part of an anti-noise campaign, a certain city forbade the use of sirens by private ambulance companies. Soon afterward, an ambulance driver was arrested after completing an emergency call—because he had used the siren. The man contended that the new law was unconstitutional, because ambulances had to have sirens for use in case of emergency. But the court held the law valid and found the driver guilty. The judge said that the city had a right to ban "the loud, piercing, shrill, screaming, unreasonably shriek of the siren." To the ambulance companies, his Honor suggested "some other signal with a modified, less objectionable tone."

Would Robin Hood Be Considered a Criminal Today?

A housewife noticed that various articles of food and clothing were disappearing from her home. She became suspicious of the maid, and one day caught her with a handful of loot. Arrested for stealing, the girl explained: "Yes, I did take some things—but never for myself. I have a friend who is very poor, and everything I took went for her." However, the court ruled out this "Robin Hood defense," and decided that the girl was technically a thief. The judge said that the main element of the crime of theft isn't to enrich oneself, but to deprive the owner of what is rightfully his.

Have your Meat Tender, Delicious, Juicy
(See Recipes Below)

THERE DOES SEEM to be a magical quality about meats which are cooked to juicy, tender perfection. However, it's not a mystic magic which all aspire to, and a few achieve. If there is a secret, it's available to all.

It is no secret that you should have a good cut of meat with which to start, if you want to have a delicious cut to set on the table. But once you have a good cut, do cook it properly instead of ruining it. This latter statement may sound a bit far-fetched, but every day there are thousands of women who go to a great deal of trouble finding a perfect roast, then cook it like a pot roast which is practically stewing it. Then, too, there are other thousands who lose pounds of meat by using old-fashioned methods such as high temperature for "browning" the meat. This is not necessary because meat cooked at constant low temperature will brown enough to be attractive to the most discerning eye, and will not shrink and lose juice as well as waste meat.

If you have a covered roaster, resolve right now to discard the cover and invest in a rack for a roast. A true roast is not, at any point during roasting, cooked with a cover. It should sit on a rack, fat side up, at low to moderate temperature in the oven, to roast perfectly. How long should a roast be cooked? The most accurate way of determining this is to insert a meat thermometer into the meat as you place it in the oven, and when the temperature has reached its proper point the roast is done. Insert the thermometer through the center, as deep into the meat as possible. You may figure out the time to roast by pounds, but this is not nearly so accurate, especially if you are cooking roast beef to medium rare.

WHEN PROPERLY PREPARED
corned beef can be a real delicacy. The meat is muscular, and needs to be cooked long and slowly for real tenderness, without which it is not a delicacy by any manner of means. Here's a novel way to prepare it:

Glazed Corned Beef
6-7 pounds corned beef
1/2 cup canned fruit juice
1/2 cup brown sugar
10 whole cloves
Spiced peaches
Wash corned beef under running water to remove all traces of brine. Cover with cold water and bring to a boil. Drain and replace water. Simmer, slowly, in a covered kettle for 4 1/2 to 5 hours or until meat can be pierced easily with a fork. Add more water if necessary. Drain meat and place on a rack in a roaster. Pour fruit juice over meat and sprinkle with brown sugar. Stick with cloves. Bake in a moderate oven (350°) for 1/2 hour. Serve, garnished with spiced peaches.

HARD AS IT MAY BE for you to try roasting meat at low and constant temperature, if you've followed other ways in the past, do give it a try. You'll never go back to the old way because the roasts are so much more delicious and juicy. Besides, who doesn't want to get all the edible meat possible for their money?

Pork Roast with Spicy Sauce
(Serves 6)
Fresh picnic shoulder
Salt and pepper
2 small onions, minced
1 tablespoon worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon paprika
1/2 cup vinegar
1/2 cup water
2 tablespoons catsup

Have picnic shoulder boned and rolled at the market. Season with salt and pepper. Place fat side up on rack in an open roaster. Roast in a moderate oven (350°) until thermometer registers 185° or allow 40-45 minutes per pound. Combine all remaining ingredients in a saucepan and cook for 5 minutes.

Roast Leg of Lamb
(Serves 8-10)
1 leg of lamb (5 pounds)
1 teaspoon ginger
1 clove garlic, if desired
Salt and pepper
1/2 cup grape jelly
1/2 cup water

Wipe meat with damp cloth. Do not remove fat, the thin, papery covering over the meat. Make four gashes in the roast and insert a piece of garlic clove in each of them, if desired. Rub ginger, salt and pepper into the meat. Place in roaster on rack fat side up, and roast in a slow fat oven until thermometer registers 180° for well done lamb. During the last 20 minutes of cooking time, baste the meat with grape jelly which has been melted in the hot water. Remove garlic before serving.

Veal shoulder or breast may be stuffed with the following to give it a very tasty roast. In roasting veal, use a slow oven (300°) to 325° and cook until the thermometer registers 175°, which is about 40 minutes to the pound.

Raisin Stuffing
(For about 5 pound roast)
4 cups soft bread crumbs
1/2 cup melted fat
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup seedless raisins
1/2 teaspoon pepper
Combine all ingredients and stuff lightly into meat, allowing room for expansion. Or, place stuffing to the side of the meat or in a casserole and baste with juices from meat. If you cook stuffing separately, bake for 30 to 40 minutes.

Brains, after pre-cooking, make a delicious dish when dipped in seasoned flour, then browned in fat and serve with creamy scrambled eggs.
Hearts need a lot of long slow cooking to make them tender. Veal hearts are especially good when filled with prune stuffing, then braised.
To shorten the cooking time for heart, cut in cubes and brown in hot fat. Then fold into tomato sauce used for spaghetti and bake the whole casserole for 30 minutes.
